

Transportation Trailblazer

Liz Levin

Then & Now

"Serving WTS as National President was a real gift. At WTS I saw women throughout the country, often without resources, develop their leadership skills and become local and national transportation leaders. It shows the power of women's leadership."

Having worked for state, local and federal agencies, as well as in the private sector, Liz Levin is a transportation leader who has a reputation for effective management, outreach, and consensus building on controversial infrastructure and environmental projects. With passions for leadership and organizational development, Ms. Levin is a recognized expert in areas including change management, strategic planning, succession planning, and market repositioning. Through WTS and other industry organizations, her voice has been one of constant advocacy for equal consideration and representation of qualified women and minorities on Boards and Appointments.
