Visionary Women: Champions of Transportation

What is your biggest piece of advice for women in transportation?

My words of advice to you about women who are looking to get into the transportation industry and construction and engineering is become that subject matter expert and network. It’s so important to network and meet different people to see what’s going on in the field/industry. I’m a mom of two wonderful kids who had to juggle all the life balls in the air, work life and all the other obligations but it’s really important to get out there and network and WTS is a great opportunity and we’re looking for new members so please come join us.
