Visionary Women: Champions of Transportation

What do you want to see in the future for women in transportation?

I’m thrilled to be able to have a chance today to talk about the future of transportation and really what young women need to be thinking about and doing as they move into this exciting field. Two things, one, technology. Pay attention to technology. Make sure you’re up as it is the future of transportation and it is what we’re all going to be depending on. Two, get out in the field. When you get the chance to get from behind your desk, get out there, touch it, feel it. Work in the field a little bit. It’s really important to build your credibility in this industry.

What is your biggest piece of advice for women in transportation?

But the most important part I want to tell people, especially young women in this field, when the opportunity comes, you got the credibility, you got the experience, when the opportunity knocks the important thing is, say yes. That’s what I want to stress with folks. Don’t doubt yourself. Get out there. Make sure you’re taking advantage of the opportunities that are out there because quite frankly the future of transportation depends on you.
