Visionary Women: Champions of Transportation

What do you feel your biggest accomplishment is?
During my time here at the Port Authority, I’m most proud of the work I was able to accomplish in the chairman’s office. During my time with the chairman’s office, I was able to work with a team of professionals across the agency where we focused on governments and mission critical projects in order to refocus the agency back on its transportation mission.

What is your biggest piece of advice for women in transportation?
My biggest piece of advice to women in the transportation industry is to identify your tribe and support system early. This group of people will serve as my sounding board and keep you grounded as you evolve in your career.

What do you want to see in the future for women in transportation?
I’d love to see women in transportation thrive in all levels of management. Specifically, I would like for us to not simply blend but own our authenticity.
