What is your biggest piece of advice for women in transportation?

I work on bridge replacement projects. I want to share a story from my college years. One summer I worked in the concrete lab for a grad student. He protested against having a female assistant. He didn’t think we belonged in the concrete lab, but after that summer, he always requested female assistants. I believe, do your own thing, be true to yourself and sometimes you’ll have an effect on more than just your own path.
