

Odalys Delgado is currently the Principal Planner in HNTB Corporation's office in Miami, FL. She manages planning and project development projects for the Miami-Dade Expressway Authority. She has 19 years of experience in transportation, specifically in the areas of Project Development and Environment studies, corridor studies, sub-area studies, traffic studies, transit planning, alternatives analysis, MPO planning processes, and National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) documentation. Most recently, she was involved in the development of a Programmatic Environmental Impact Statement for an 85 mile corridor transit study for the Florida Department of Transportation. Prior to consulting, Delgado worked for various local and county governments in Florida and Georgia for 10 years. She is a member of the American Institute of Certified Planners. She has a Bachelor's and Master's degree from the University of Florida.