Spotlight: Sally Librera

By Jessica Murray (former WTS Scholarship recipient)

In May 2018, Sally Librera was promoted from vice president of the Staten Island Railroad to senior vice president of the New York City Subway, the first woman to hold either position. She has been with New York City Transit for 15 years in many different roles that have grown in complexity as she has been promoted.

Ms. Librera is a nontraditional head of subways in many ways. She initially became interested in transportation while working as a math teacher in San Francisco, where she became increasingly involved in working with her students' families and community and was inspired by the connection between public transit service and opportunities for her students to prosper. She left her early career to return to school for dual master's degrees in City Planning and Transportation Engineering at the University of California at Berkeley.

Ms. Librera sees her position as the first woman in charge of subways as important because it signals to people (no pun intended) that a woman can hold an executive position in this field, but also that people of other backgrounds can have leadership roles. While she acknowledges that her perspective as senior vice president of subways may be different because she is a woman, she thinks that increasing diversity in all forms will help to bring in many other perspectives to the decision-making process, ultimately improving the customer experience. Her advice for women who are considering a career in transportation: "Do it!" Her advice for women at all stages in their transportation careers: "work hard, be open to lots of different opportunities, especially early on, don't be afraid to ask a lot of questions, and don't consider any job out of your reach."

NJ Glass Ceiling

By Adrienne Zicklin-Kanter

On Monday, June 17th, WTS-GNY held its annual New Jersey spring dinner with a panel discussion inspired by the recently released report Glass Ceiling: Women Who Have Broken Through. This complemented a dinner a few weeks earlier held in New York City with the same theme, but with different speakers. It was a great evening with a dynamic and animated discussion filled with interesting and entertaining reminiscences and wisdom.

The moderator of the New Jersey panel was Yvonne Lopez-Diaz, vice president of Human Resources at HNTB, and chair of the Glass Ceiling report committee. Panelists included NJ Department of Transportation Commissioner Diane Gutierrez-Scacetti, NJ Transit Senior Vice President and Chief Administrative Officer Jeannie Kwon, Pivot Strategies CEO Flora Castillo, and Fitzgerald and Halliday President and CEO Susan VanBenschoten.

Ms. Lopez-Diaz is HNTB human resources director for the Central and West Regions, as well as the growth champion for the New York office and Northwest Division where she is focused on supporting the firm's strategic growth and development efforts. She has more than 35 years of experience in the human resources field, the last 19 of which have been spent in various leadership roles within HNTB, an employee-owned infrastructure solutions firm.

Ms. Gutierrez-Scacetti was confirmed as the 19th commissioner of the New Jersey Department of Transportation in June 2018 after having started in an acting role at the beginning of last year. Prior to this, she was CEO at Florida's Turnpike Enterprise, a part of the Florida Department of Transportation during which time, she managed more than 460 centerline miles and a five-year capital program in excess of $6 billion, supported by $1 billion in revenue.

Since 2018, when she joined the agency as senior vice president and chief administrative officer for New Jersey Transit, Ms. Kwon has been responsible for human resources, contracting and purchasing, strategy and corporate planning, civil rights and diversity initiatives, equal employment opportunity and affirmative action. NJ Transit is the nation's largest statewide public transportation system, providing more than 895,000 weekday trips on 261 bus routes, three light rail lines, 12 commuter rail lines and Access Link paratransit service.

Ms. Castillo is president and CEO of Pivot Strategies, LLC. She is the longest-serving active member of the NJ Transit Board of Directors which she joined in 1999. She also was the youngest person and first Latina to serve on the Board when she began on the Board. In 2012, she became the first Latina elected chair of the American Public Transportation Association (APTA).

Ms. VanBenschoten, PE is the president/CEO and Board chair of Fitzgerald and Halliday, Inc. (FHI) in Hartford, CT and New York City. She is a civil and environmental engineer with 33 years of professional experience, including the management of complex multidisciplinary transportation engineering projects for private developers, state agencies, transit agencies, municipalities, and institutions.

Learn from a Leader: Veronica Vanterpool

By Adrienne Zicklin Kanter

On Wednesday, July 24th, WTS-GNY inaugurated its sixth season of Learn from a Leader hosted at WSP and with guest Veronica Vanterpool, deputy director of the national Vision Zero Network and board member of the New York Metropolitan Transportation Authority, as well as former executive director of the Tri-State Transportation Campaign.

Ms. Vanterpool was both enlightening and dynamic as she described her trajectory from high school student to her present roles. Before even touching on her own story, she impressed on the attendees the value of remaining authentic and committed to one's passions, themes to which she returned throughout her presentation.

In 2015, Mayor de Blasio recommended Ms. Vanterpool as a member of the MTA Board for which she was appointed by Governor Cuomo and approved by the New York State Senate in 2016. Introducing more women and minorities to decision-making has been a priority of the mayor and as a Hispanic woman, she contributes a unique perspective to a board that has historically been comprised of older, white men.

But it also has been her insistence that she vote based on the facts, issues and impact to the riding public rather than adhere to any political agenda. She demonstrated that independence when she published an opinion piece in the New York Daily News in support of congestion pricing, despite Mayor de Blasio's early opposition to the concept.

In 2018, Ms. Vanterpool moved on to the Vision Zero Network, an organization committed to bringing together leaders in a variety of fields, including public health, engineering and law enforcement, to eliminate fatalities and severe injuries from traffic crashes and to assure safe mobility for all. She is also principal of V Squared Strategies, LLC, a consulting practice she launched in early 2018.

It is her role as an MTA board member that drew the most interest from the Learn from the Leader attendees. As she continued to discuss her role as a board member, Ms. Vanterpool's confidence in her work was clear - she describes having had an advantage when she first started on the board, having been a transit advocate at TSTC for so many years and having knowledge of and familiarity with the budget processes at the city, state, and agency levels as well as capital planning process, history of funding the MTA and current funding mechanisms. She also knew many of the decision makers. She added that to keep up with her responsibilities as a board member, she reads thousands of pages, participates in several meetings and calls and engages often with a variety of stakeholders - responsibilities she takes very seriously.

Many thanks to Lauren Antonelli, Bibi Khan, Sofia Berger, and Sheriza Majid for all their work in organizing this successful event!

Membership Appreciation Event 2019

By Megan Young

Thank you to all who came out to the 2019 WTS-GNY Membership Appreciation Event on Monday, August 19th. We had a great turnout and perfect summer weather for the rooftop event that honored the continued support, enormous contribution, and immense dedication of the GNY members. We were thrilled to welcome guests April Rai and Haley Diamond from WTS International, who traveled from Washington D.C to join us. Guests were treated to a spectacular view of one of New York City's most iconic structures, the Empire State Building, as they mingled with friends and made new connections over warm-weather drinks and delicious hors d'oeuvres atop the gorgeous Monarch Rooftop Bar & Lounge.

Half-way through the evening, long-standing members, committee members, and past and present board members were acknowledged and thanked for all they do to make the WTS-GNY Chapter such a valuable and worthwhile organization. Our first Survey-Respondent Raffle Winner, Marcia Shapiro, was then presented with a $50 Amazon gift card (so keep taking those monthly surveys for your change to win next time!). Raffle prizes, including WTS mugs, cocktail packages, entertainment serving arrangements, and oil and vinegar sets were auctioned off to deserving participants. New members of the organization were recognized and welcomed with a certificate, letter, and honorary WTS pin. The entire night was a huge success and the WTS Membership Committee wants to wholeheartedly thank all members of the Greater New York for their hard work this past year.

The Committee looks forward to many more accomplishments in the upcoming year and celebrating again next summer!

Transportation YOU High School Summer Internship experiences at the PANYNJ

Daphne Blot shares her experience with the Engineering Department

This summer internship was very much a fascinating opportunity. During my internship, I worked in the Engineering department. My job gave me a lot of exposure to what employees normally do daily in a public agency which is what I wanted from this internship because it shows what I see my future career as. It was a great experience working on financial reports, presentations, and collaborations with architects.

My summer internship experience at the Port Authority was amazing! I had an opportunity to work for the Major Capital Projects/ World Trade Center Construction Department. During my internship, I planned department-wide events, tracked orders, filed documents, and sent emails. A few department members also trained me on budget software and vendor online ordering processes.

Paule Ndoba shares her experience with the PATH/Rail Department

Ever heard the popular saying "When life gives you lemons, make lemonade"? Well, that saying really resonates with me as I am a young woman who struggles with talking to new people, especially those who hold prominent roles. However, while at The Port Authority of New York and New Jersey (PANYNJ), one important thing that I took away from my experience was that your adversities should never stop you from prevailing.

Sha-Dania Peterson shares her experience with the Planning & Regional Development Department

I loved my summer internship experience at the Port Authority. During my time there, I worked in the Planning and Regional Development Department.
