WTS

Advancing women
Advancing transportation
› Los Angeles

Our Future Workforce is Depending On You!

Become a part of WTS-LA's effort to advance women in transportation. Donate now to help young women reach their educational goals and improve the future workforce!
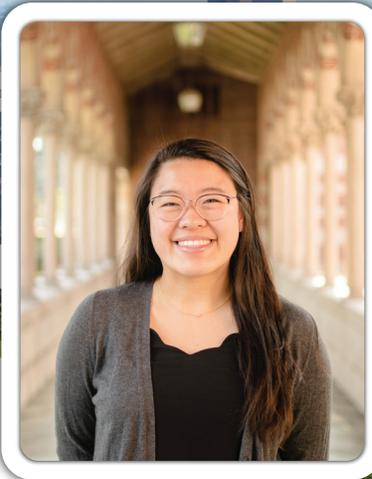

WTS-LA awarded Emily with the Ava Doner Memorial Undergraduate Scholarship.

WTS-LA awarded Alejandra with the Equity in Transportation Scholarship.
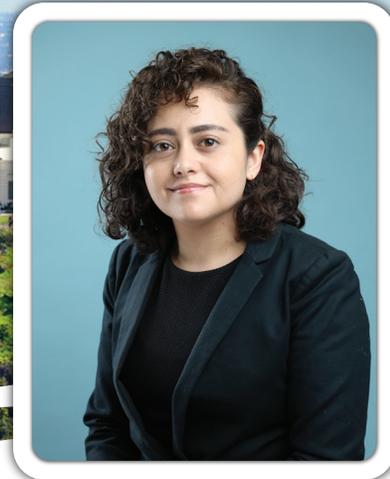

Emily On

A senior studying Civil Engineering at USC, Emily plans to continue her studies as a master's candidate in Transportation Engineering. She hopes to dedicate her career to easing traffic congestion and increase equitable transportation options.

"As I study transportation engineering, I am learning more about how congestion and roadways can affect many people. I hope to be in a field where I can build sustainable and equitable transportation solutions with other like-minded professionals as a transportation engineer."

Alejandra Rios Gutierrez

A master's degree candidate at UCLA in Urban and Regional Planning, she looks to address environmental justice issues, pursuing a dual degree in Transportation Policy & Environmental Analysis. She is passionate about equity in transportation and justice in urban spaces.

"Public transit and active transportation are essential components in our communities. Not only do they provide a key role in transportation access, but they also offer a sustainable solution to mitigating the transportation sector's greenhouse gas emissions problem. I'm ecstatic about working towards more equitable & safe transportation systems."

What Our Donors Are Saying

Join our scholarship sponsors which have included companies such as AECOM, BYD, Jacobs, HNTB, PGH Wong, Stantec, Zephyr, Mott MacDonald and WSP; small business Berg Associates, Inc.; and firms and agencies that have donated to increase current scholarships like SCAG, Kimley Horn, Psomas, TY Lin, Systra, Sener; and to long-time individual donors like Emilie Gino, Professor James Moore, Robert Frank, Alexandra Spencer and many, many others!